
Bridging Bioregional Wisdom in the Northeast of Turtle Island

A Co-Created Bioregional Activation Series

KINSHIP EARTH

Published Q1 2026

Bridging Bioregional Wisdom in the Northeast of Turtle Island

A Co-Created Bioregional Activation Series

Proposal by Susanna Choe and Syd Harvey Griffith

Invitation to Hudson Harmonic Team

We're reaching out to invite the Hudson Harmonic team into a co-creative partnership around a bioregional gathering series we are stewarding, Bridging Bioregional Wisdom in the Northeast of Turtle Island - emerging from ongoing work across bioregional organizing, regenerative finance, land-based hubs, governance education, and culture-building in the Northeast.

The success of the series depends on co-creation - with trusted spaces, facilitators, and anchors like Hudson Harmonic.

Our proposal is to listen together, refine the shape of the series, and design what feels most aligned for your space, our shared community, and the NE bioregion.

Purpose & Mission

The mission of this series is to co-create - alongside experienced community leaders, organizers, and practitioners - the relational, governance, and coordination foundations needed to resource a thriving Northeast bioregion.

The series is being designed to:

- Surface who is already doing this kind of work
- Understand the status of their efforts and what they need
- Increase visibility, trust, and collaboration among those with shared goals

Desired Outcomes

We aim to collaboratively support:

1. The launch of a Northeast Bioregional Flow Fund
A trust-based, participatory funding mechanism rooted in relationship and local stewardship.
2. The launch of a Northeast Bioregional Currency / Token
A practical coordination and exchange tool (with governance/voice layers explored when the bioregion is ready).
3. The development and fundraising capacity of Northeast bioregional land-based hubs (e.g. Bioregional Finance Facilities)
4. Practicing Commitment Pooling across the bioregion - coordinating time, skills, relationships, land access, and funding to strengthen collaboration
5. Preparing to co-create a NE bioregional (leave-a-positive-trace) festival, with support from the “Planetary Party Protocol”

Overall, supporting shared resourcing, knowledge exchange, trade, and mutual aid - while reducing dependency on extractive systems and long-distance supply chains.

PILLARS

Relationship-Building & Mapping

The first and foundational pillar of the series is relationship-building and mapping:

- Who is already stewarding land, capital, governance, culture, or exchange?
- What systems, tools, or funding models are in motion?
- Where are the natural synergies, overlaps, or opportunities for collaboration?

This pillar focuses on coherence-building, not speed - so that any structures that emerge are rooted in trust and shared understanding.

Governance Education

Governance education will be woven throughout the series as living infrastructure through:

- Shared language around decision-making, stewardship, and accountability
- Exposure to participatory, bioregional, and commons-based governance models
- Practical support for co-creation across difference without fragmentation

This supports collaboration that can hold over time.

Tools, Tech & Frameworks

An important thread of the series is surfacing and convening the tools, technologies, and frameworks already supporting this movement, including (but not limited to):

- Mapping and coordination tools
- Participatory governance frameworks
- Regenerative finance and funding infrastructure
- Storytelling, data, and visibility platforms

Our intention is to invite the people and organizations building these tools into the series so the bioregion can understand what's available, what's interoperable, and what's missing, (and to organically align around shared infrastructure).

Healing & Conflict Transformation (Responsive, Not Centered)

We recognize that every community carries friction points, historical wounds, and unresolved tensions that can block collaboration.

Healing and conflict transformation will be made available in tandem with the series, supported by skilled facilitators as needed.

When conflict surfaces, we plan to make space for them to be:

- Acknowledged

- Held with care
- Integrated without derailing the broader work

....to keep the series grounded and responsive.

Honoring Place: The Great Law of Peace

The series will center the Haudenosaunee Great Law of Peace, which united the Iroquois Confederacy and influenced American democracy.

As the United States approaches its 250th anniversary, we see this as a moment to:

- Center Indigenous governance wisdom
- Connect bioregional governance to healing, celebration, and responsibility to place
- Honor the land and the lineages of collective governance rooted in the Northeast

This grounding informs how we approach bioregional governance, reconciliation, and future-facing collaboration.

Culture, Arts & Creative Expression

Artists, musicians, storytellers, and culture bearers are essential contributors to the bioregional field. Throughout the series, we will invite:

- Music, visual art, and creative storytelling rooted in place
- Cultural offerings that reflect regenerative values and bioregional identity
- Artists and culture bearers to contribute expressions that deepen meaning and inspiration

Art as Living Infrastructure

Creative expression will be welcomed as a form of cultural infrastructure - supporting shared identity, celebration, and imaginative vision alongside the structural work of the series.

Resourcing the Series

Kinship Earth is contributing $7,500 in seed funding to support this series, aligned with its mission to not only practice Flow Funding, but to help bioregional organizing groups prepare for and launch their own unique Flow Funding Foundations.

We see this series as a powerful way to prepare the Northeast bioregion - relationally, structurally, and culturally - for such a launch.

Kinship Earth is also raising matching funds to further resource:

- The series itself
- Facilitators, organizers, artists, contributors
- Tools, mapping, and coordination infrastructure
- Those helping bring this work into form

Proposed Series Flow

We offer the following flow as a starting point, open to evolution based on community needs and what emerges during the sessions:

1. Online Preparation Sessions (1–2 Sessions)

- Introduce the series, purpose, and desired outcomes
- Orientation to bioregional context and shared language
- Invitation for participants to begin mapping work in advance - so a living map exists when we gather in person

2. In-Person Gathering at Hudson Harmonic

- Relationship and trust building
- Embodied sensemaking and integration
- Governance practice, storytelling, and design labs
- Translating mapped insights into lived connection and next steps

Hudson Harmonic is envisioned as a central relational anchor for this work.

3. Distributed Bioregional Hub Gatherings (Other In-person Gatherings)

- Partner-hosted activations at farms, community centers, and land-based hubs
- Locally relevant expressions connected back to shared learning and coordination

Invitation to Co-Create

We'd love to explore with you:

- What feels aligned to co-create around
- How Hudson Harmonic's values and community inform the series
- What role feels sustainable and life-giving for your space and collaborators

Our intention is to co-create a living series that serves Earth, people, and the moment we're in.